Regulation of Private Domestic Adoption Expenses

A private, independent, or direct-placement adoption is an adoption arranged between a birth family and an adoptive family without using a public agency. A placement arranged in this way between families in the United States is referred to as a private/independent domestic adoption. Private adoption agencies or attorneys may assist in completing a private domestic adoption. Unlike adoption of a child from foster care through a public agency, which involves fairly minimal fees, in a private/independent adoption, costs are typically much higher as the adoptive family is expected to pay many of the expenses.¹

Approximately 47 States, the District of Columbia, American Samoa, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, and Puerto Rico have laws that provide some regulation of the fees and expenses that adoptive parents are expected to pay when arranging a private-placement or independent domestic adoption.² Some of the fees and expenses addressed in the statutes include expenses of the expectant mother during pregnancy and childbirth; placement costs, such as agency fees; and legal and attorney expenses for adoptive and birth parents.

² Hawaii, Rhode Island, Wyoming, and the Virgin Islands do not currently address the issue of adoption expenses in statute. The word "approximately" is used to stress the fact that States frequently amend their laws. This information is current through March 2017.

Birth Parent Expenses

In private or independent adoptions, the adoptive parents may pay some of the birth mother's expenses, particularly in the case of a pregnant woman planning to place her infant for adoption. Approximately 45 States, the District of Columbia, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands specify in their statutes the type of birth parent expenses a prospective adoptive family is allowed to pay.³ The actual dollar amount is usually limited to "reasonable and customary."

The types of expenses most commonly allowed by statute include the following:

- Maternity-related medical and hospital costs
- Temporary living expenses of the mother during pregnancy
- Counseling fees
- Attorney and legal fees and guardian ad litem fees
- Travel costs, meals, and lodging when necessary for court appearances or accessing services

Approximately seven States explicitly prohibit adoptive parents from paying certain types of expenses.⁴ Costs such as educational expenses, vehicles, vacations, permanent housing, or any other payment for the monetary gain of the birth parent often are excluded. In 16 States, the statutes do not exclude specific types of expenses but do indicate that any expense not expressly permitted by law or considered by the court to be unreasonable cannot be paid by the adoptive parents.⁵

Approximately 18 States specify time limits for the payment of the birth mother's living expenses or psychological counseling.⁶ The time limits set for these payments range from 30 days up to 6 months after the child's birth or placement. For example, Iowa allows postplacement counseling for 60 days but limits payment of living expenses to 30 days. New York limits payment of living expenses to 60 days prior to the child's birth and 30 days thereafter. Oklahoma allows payments for postplacement counseling for up to 6 months but limits other expenses to 2 months beyond placement of the child. In seven States, the payment of expenses may not exceed a set dollar amount unless the court grants an exception.⁷

Payments for Arranging an Adoption

In an independent adoption, a prospective adoptive parent often uses an agent to locate a pregnant woman considering adoption for her unborn child. In an effort to ensure that no person, either the agent acting as intermediary or a member of the birth family, profits from the placement of a child, most States restrict the activities of these agents or intermediaries. Approximately 26 States, American Samoa, the District of Columbia, the Northern Mariana Islands, and Puerto Rico prohibit the payment of any fee for connecting an adoptive family with a pregnant woman or obtaining consent to adoption; in these States, fees may be paid only for the provision of adoption services, such as arranging for the home study.⁸ An additional 12 States require that the placement of children be done by licensed child-placing agencies or other authorized professionals.⁹

⁶ Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Vermont.

⁷ Arizona ($1,000), Connecticut ($1,500), Florida ($5,000), Idaho ($2,000), Indiana ($3,000), Ohio ($3,000), and Wisconsin ($5,000).

⁹ Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Texas. Payments for Relinquishing a Child

To avoid the appearance of “baby selling,” laws in 31 States, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, and Puerto Rico disallow any person from offering, or any birth parent from accepting, a payment of money or anything of value in exchange for relinquishing a child for adoption.¹⁰ Making a payment for anything beyond the expenses authorized in statute is expressly prohibited. California and Nevada prohibit a birth parent from obtaining financial benefit when he or she has no intention of completing the adoption.

In 14 States, payment of allowable expenses cannot be construed to obligate the birth parent to consent to the adoption.¹¹ However, in Montana, North Carolina, and Vermont, if the adoption is not completed, the adoptive parent is not required to make any additional payment of expenses unless there is a prior written agreement to make a specific payment regardless of the outcome of the adoption proceeding. Idaho is the only State that requires reimbursement of expenses to prospective adoptive parents if the birth parent decides not to place the child for adoption.

Agency Costs and Fees

The fees charged by agencies as well as the extent to which they are regulated by State authorities vary from State to State. In 34 States, the Northern Mariana Islands, and Puerto Rico, the statutes simply authorize agencies to collect fees that are reasonable or cover the actual cost of the adoption services provided.¹² Approximately 10 States specify a dollar amount for agency fees or specific services that agencies provide.¹³ Approximately 17 States

¹⁰ Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

¹¹ Florida, Illinois, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Vermont, and Wisconsin.

¹³ Alabama, California, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oregon, and Wisconsin specify a dollar amount in statute or regulation for some specific services.

provide for a reduction or waiver of fees for adoptive families that meet specified income criteria.¹⁴ Nevada waives fees when the family is adopting a child with special needs.¹⁵

Agencies typically provide preplacement services such as the preparation of home studies of adoptive families,¹⁶ compilation of social and medical histories of birth families, birth family counseling, and postplacement services. Sometimes agencies also will receive payment for birth parent expenses and make appropriate disbursements.

Reporting to the Court

Approximately 41 States, the District of Columbia, American Samoa, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, and Puerto Rico require that an accounting of all adoption-related expenses be made to the court that has jurisdiction over the adoption proceedings.¹⁷ Typically, the accounting is made in the form of a sworn statement or affidavit. In some States, this statement is attached to the adoption petition. In other States, the accounting must be filed prior to the court hearing on the adoption. In South Carolina, receipts for the birth mother’s living expenses must be submitted, and any living expense for which a receipt is not presented may be disallowed.

In private and independent adoptions, the court has the discretion to review all disbursements made for adoption-related expenses, including payments made to or on behalf of the birth parents. In five States, the statutes permit the court to disallow or modify any expense that it finds unreasonable, unnecessary, or not permitted by State law.¹⁸

¹⁶ For more information, see Child Welfare Information Gateway’s The Adoption Home Study Process at <https://www.childwelfare.gov/pubs/f-homstu/>.

¹⁸ Alabama, Arizona, Kansas, Kentucky, and Michigan.

Allowable Fees Charged by Department/Agency

Citation: Ala. Code § 26-10-4.1; Admin. Code r. 660-5-22.04

The Department of Human Resources is required to collect a fee of $300 for investigation services in certain adoptions. Unless waived by the department, the fee will be charged to the petitioners in all adoptions except those in which an investigation is specifically not required by statute (e.g., stepparent and relative adoptions).

The fee is not to be collected for investigations where parental rights have been terminated, in those adoptions involving children placed for adoption by the department or a licensed child-placing agency, or in cases in which the investigative services were performed by a licensed child-placing agency.

In regulation: The department shall waive the fee in cases of indigence of the petitioners when the family's gross income does not exceed 100 percent of the annual Federal Poverty Income Guidelines.

The department may waive the fee for other good cause when the adoption is in the child's best interest, imposition of the fee would prevent the adoption, and any of the following circumstances apply:

- The petitioners are related to the child beyond the degree of relationship required by law to exempt them from an investigation.
- The child has lived in the home of the petitioners for several years.
- The child's relationship with siblings would be injured or severed if the adoption does not proceed.
- The child has diagnosed special needs for medical care or appliances, counseling, therapy, educational tutoring, or other treatment.
- The child is one of a sibling group of three or more children being adopted by the same petitioners.
- The child's approved foster parents are adopting the child independently with the parents' consent and with the approval of the department.
- The department determines that there are unusual circumstances and imposing a fee would be against the best interests of the child or prevent the adoption.

Accounting of Expenses Required by Court

Citation: Ala. Code § 26-10A-23(b)-(d)

Prior to payment, the petitioners must file with the court a full accounting of all charges for expenses, fees, or services they will be paying relating to the adoption. Payment may be made only with court approval except that fees may be placed in an escrow account prior to court approval. The court may not refuse to approve a fee for documented services on the sole basis that a child has not been placed. The court shall approve all reasonable fees and expenses, unless it determines that the expense is unreasonable based upon specific written findings of fact.

The petitioner must file a sworn statement that is a full accounting of all disbursements paid in the adoption.

Under penalty of perjury, the adoptive parents and the parent or parents surrendering the child for adoption shall, prior to the entry of the final adoption order, sign affidavits stating that no money or other things of value have been paid or received for giving the minor up for adoption.

These expenses may include costs for medical and hospital care and examinations for the mother and child, counseling fees, legal fees, agency fees, living expenses, and any other costs the court finds reasonable and necessary.

A person who wishes to pay the living expenses of a birth parent that exceed $1,000 shall file a motion with the court to permit that payment. A maximum of $1,000 may be advanced for birth parent living expenses without a motion.

In determining what living expenses are reasonable and necessary, the court shall consider, but not be limited to, the following factors:

This subsection does apply to an agency-placement adoption or to a direct-placement adoption made through an agency.

Allowable Fees Charged by Department/Agency

Citation: Fam. Code § 8810; Code of Regs., Tit. 22, § 89137

Whenever a petition is filed for the adoption of a child, the petitioner shall pay a nonrefundable fee to the Department of Social Services or to the delegated county adoption agency for the cost of investigating the adoption petition. Payment shall be made to the department or delegated county adoption agency for an amount as follows:

- For petitions filed on and after October 1, 2008, $4,500
- For petitioners who have a valid preplacement evaluation at the time of filing a petition, $1,550 for a postplacement evaluation

The department or delegated county adoption agency may reduce the fee to no less than $500 when the prospective adoptive parents are of very low income, according to the income limits published by the Department of Housing and Community Development, and making the required payment would be detrimental to the welfare of an adopted child. The department shall develop additional guidelines to determine the financial criteria for waiver or reduction of the fee.

In regulation: A fee of $500 shall be charged by a public adoption agency. A county adoption agency or the department may waive, defer, or reduce the fee when its payment would cause economic hardship to the adopting parents, would be detrimental to the adopted child, or if necessary to obtain the placement of a hard-to-place child. If the fee is waived, reduced, or deferred, the case record shall reflect the basis upon which the decision is made.

No private adoption agency shall charge or collect any fee for its services unless and until it has submitted to and obtained the approval of the department with respect to both the maximum fee that may be charged and the agency's fee payment plan.

Accounting of Expenses Required by Court

Citation: Fam. Code § 8610

The petitioners in an adoption proceeding shall file with the court a full accounting report of all disbursements of anything of value made or agreed to be made by them or on their behalf in connection with the birth of the child, the placement of the child with the petitioners, any medical or hospital care received by the child's birth mother or the child in connection with the child's birth, any other expenses of either birth parent, or the adoption. The accounting report shall be made under penalty of perjury and shall be submitted to the court on or before the date set for the hearing on the adoption petition, unless the court grants an extension of time.

The accounting report shall be itemized in detail and shall show the services relating to the adoption or to the placement of the child for adoption that were received by the petitioners, either birth parent, the child, or any other person for whom payment was made by or on behalf of the petitioners. The report shall also include the dates of each payment and the names and addresses of each attorney, physician and surgeon, hospital, licensed adoption agency, or other person or organization that received any funds in connection with the adoption or the placement of the child.

This section does not apply to an adoption by a stepparent when one birth parent or adoptive parent retains custody and control of the child.
